INTRODUCTION.

THERE are one or two points which I think it necessary to elaborate for the assistance of those who may have occasion to consult this Catalogue of Sporting Books and Prints.

In the first place it will be observed that, with very few exceptions, only English illustrated books are dealt with. The vast majority of sporting books contain illustrations or at least a frontispiece. Those which do not are generally very old, but even the majority of these have been reprinted with illustrations, and consequently come within the scope of the work and are noticed accordingly.

Bibliographers who have dealt with this branch of literature have hitherto adopted one of two methods of arrangement. They either catalogue the works they notice under the names of their authors, or else in order of date. Both these methods seem to me to be more or less unsatisfactory. Quick reference is what is now sought for in books of the kind. In furtherance of this desirable end I have adopted a system of titular arrangement, adding cross references where necessary, and supplying an index of author's names. For instance, Apperley's "Memoirs of the Life of the late John Mytton" is popularly quoted as the "Life of John Mytton." Though the biography must therefore be looked for under "Memoirs," I have added a cross reference, and many other books are dealt with, when the necessity demands, in precisely the same way, so that with the assistance of the index very little time need be spent in turning to any book that may be required. If a book cannot be found under what the reader believes to be the correct title, reference should be made to the Index, and in any case attention is called to the additions and corrections on page 140, et seq. The Prints are arranged under subjects for the reason that many of them have no well-known titles or, at any rate, no titles that are quoted in the same way on all occasions.

It will be observed that not only sporting books, strictly so called, are catalogued, but books of a racy character also. Pierce Egan's "Life in London," the work entitled "Fashion and Folly, or the Buck's Pilgrimage," and many other old time publications of a similar character are thus dealt with. When these books were written the word "Sport" had a much wider application than it has now.

The prices given throughout the volume have nearly all been realised by auction within the last twelve months. In the case of some very scarce and valuable books it has been found necessary to draw upon a much greater period of time, since books of this exclusive kind may not appear more than once or twice in the market for many years. As a rule, however, the quoted values will be found approximately accurate, having regard to the condition and binding mentioned after each entry. It may be observed that in the case of books worth more than about £1, bookseller's prices would necessarily be considerably higher; under that amount they would not seem to vary so much from the auction values quoted. The reason for this will be sufficiently obvious. All the books and prints included in this descriptive survey, which are not quite new and in print, have a distinct tendency to advance in price. They are, year by year, becoming more difficult to meet with, and some of them will, in the near future, be practically unobtainable.

So far as Angling Books are concerned, reference should be made to the extensive library of books of this character formed by the late Mr. Edward Snow, of Boston, U.S.A., which was sold by Messrs. Sotheby, on November 30th, and following day, 1898. The prices realised at this sale were, however, considerably above the average.

The first five editions of this well-known book are much sought after. This was the last edition published during Walton's lifetime. A set of perfect copies of these first five editions, in their original bindings (first four sheep., the last calf), brought £800 at the Ashburnham sale, May, 1898. It is worthy of note that in 1847 Dr. Bethune valued a fine and perfect copy of the 1st ed. at £12 12s. More than 100 editions of the Compleat Angler have appeared since 1676, many of them being illustrated. The following are the more important editions:—

SPORTING PRINTS.

NOTE.—The quoted values represent average auction prices realised for prints of the quality described during the year 1898. Prices vary, of course, with quality, some impressions being often better than others, although all may be from the same plate. For this reason great judgment has to be exercised in all questions relating to the value of prints, especially those printed in colours. It must be remembered that Sporting Prints, if of good quality, are, on the whole, increasing in value. In the following list, prints which are not stated to be coloured must be regarded as uncoloured. Prints published in a series, under distinctive and well-known titles, in wrappers or other coverings, are classed as “Books,” and will be found in the front part of the work. It is advisable to consult the Index in every case. (See Introduction).
